I started working at the High School as Head of History in 2014. I have enjoyed teaching the captive audience that Spalding High School provides for the subject that I'm passionate about. I have particularly enjoyed the opportunity to engage students in trips to the Battlefields around the Ypres Salient in Belgium. Such visits have allowed me to remind students of the importance of understanding the past. I'm proud to lead the History department and to have the privilege to represent such an impressive school. The opportunity to become a governor is also a role that affords me the opportunity to endeavour to represent the best interest of the staff and students of the high school. I'm proud to be part of the community at the High School.
